BRIEF JOB DESCRIPTION:

Serves in the capacity of a credentialed Aeromedical Health Technician. Performs a variety of professional direct health care clinical duties within the field of general emergency.

Performs medical screening examinations. Secures health and medical history from the patient or family member, records findings and makes clinical evaluation. Examines patients and performs initial patient work-up and assessment of patients' care and treatment, and determines the need for and orders laboratory tests, X-rays and other procedures necessary to complete assessment of the patient. Makes decisions concerning primary care needs of patients with physicians; works collaboratively with the physician in patient management evaluation and revision of therapeutic plans; and refers extremely or selected complex medical problems to medical management. Diagnoses disease, illness disorder or injury; institutes treatment of patients; and seeks the advice of appropriate physicians for more serious or uncommon conditions. Prescribes for and treats a variety of diseases, disorders and injuries; treats patients returning for routine or directed follow-up and treatment of chronic illnesses previously documented in patients' medical records; writes routine orders on outpatients; perform medical histories; and dictates narrative summaries. Ensures inpatient treatment documents and narrative summaries are countersigned by the attending physician. Provides a full range of emergency services or crises interventions in the absence of the physician, including life saving emergency procedures in order to stabilize a patient within the scope of practice and approved protocols. Able to define unknown conditions and resolve critical problems. Evaluates the primary care aspects of patient care recognizing the need for reassessment by a physician or other staff professionals.

Performs military specific medical tasks, including (but not limited to) periodic health assessments and deployment health assessments.

Performs complete and comprehensive physical examinations as required for attendance at military schools, Class 1 to 4 Flight Duty Medical Examinations and aeromedical summaries, separation from service, and others as may be required. These exams may include in-depth histories, review of systems, physical examinations which may include neurological and psychological evaluations, pelvic and rectal exams, review of EKGs, x-rays, and laboratory data, and requesting appropriate additional tests as indicated by exam findings. Information accrued from these exams will be recorded in an organized and logical fashion and presented to the assigned physician reviewer when required by the approving authority.

Participates with the attending physician and other medical staff in interpreting and evaluating continuing changes in direct patient care, conflicting requirements, or technological developments in the medical field.
